FEDERAL BUILDING READY NEXT JUNE

Almost Certain That There Will Be No Further Delays in Construction.

Representatives in Richmond of J. Henry Miller, contractor, yesterday announced that Richmond's new post-office building will be ready for occupancy next June. There now remain the placing of the roof, of the finest red tile, interior work and the construction of the approaches.

It is said that the interior of the handsome Federal structure, with especial reference to three big court-rooms, two on the third floor and one on the fourth, will be a masterpiece of art. They will be finished in hand-carved mahogany of the rarest variety, which alone will cost $60,000.

The courtrooms will all face on the Bank Street side of the building, this being done to avoid the noise from the heavy traffic in Main Street.

Approaches Under Sidelwalk.
Approaches for mail wagons will lead from Main Street and Bank Streets, passing through a tunnel in the rear of the building, which will be built under the sidewalk of Bank Street. These driveways will be paved with vitrified brick and will be a great convenience in the speedy handling of incoming and outgoing mail.

The post-office, which will occupy the entire first floor, will be a model. It will be equipped with the most improved devices and fixtures.

Another feature which will be installed throughout the building will be a vacuum cleaning system.

Work has been entirely done to exterior stonework, but that has now been practically completed and the obstacle removed. So if no unexpected difficulty arises there is little doubt that the Richmond home of Uncle Sam will be completed by next June.

DEED IS RECORDED

Levy and Kaufman Get Bank Building on

A deed was recorded in the Chancery Court yesterday transferring the old National Bank of Virginia building at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Main Streets to Raphael Levy and L. Kaufman for $200,000. The deed retains the right to remove its walls, which is a very large thing, one side of the building between two windows having been taken out some years ago to allow the installation of the enormous steel door.

The National Bank of Virginia is now located at Ninth and Main Streets in the rooms formerly occupied by the Bank of Richmond, with which it consolidated.

The property transferred to the sixty feet on Main Street, running back on Eleventh eighty feet. The sale, which was made several months ago, was handled through Pollard & Backy.

WANT FLOTILLA FOR CONVENTION

Chamber Asks Senators to Help Bring Torpedo-Boats Here Next Week.

A joint telegram was sent to Senators Martin and Swanson yesterday by Governor Mann, Mayor Richardson and Vice-President Carrington, of the Chamber of Commerce, asking the Senators to use their influence with the Secretary of the Navy to have the torpedo flotilla now stationed in Hampton Roads stationed at Richmond during the meet of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Convention, October 18-20.

The idea was suggested at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday by Chairman George Rogers. Late in the afternoon the following answer was received from Senator Swanson at Chambers, addressed to Vice-President Carrington:

Telegram just received. Matter will have my immediate attention and best efforts. CLAUDE A. SWANSON.
Congressman John H. Small, of North Carolina, a member of the executive committee of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association and of the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors, yesterday by a similar telegram, wired last night:

"Your telegram received. Will wire immediately Navy Department in cooperation with Senator Martin, asking department to send torpedo flotilla to James River for convention."

Senator Martin had not been heard from at midnight, but is known to be at work on the matter and to have communicated with several officials. An affirmative answer from the Secretary of the Navy is expected to-day.

Negro Seriously Hurt.
Tom Winston, colored, of 312 Carrington Street, was accidentally struck in the back yesterday by a piece of iron while at work in the yard of a local wood and coal firm. Complainant carried him to the Second Police Station, and the city ambulance was summoned. Dr. R. E. Watts examined the man and found that he had been injured internally. He was taken to the City Hospital in a serious condition.

Arrested in Norfolk.
Louis Gardner, colored, a United States letter-carrier, of Richmond, was arrested in Norfolk yesterday and held for the Richmond Police. He was charged with the abduction of his wife. An officer will probably be sent today to bring the prisoner to this city.

Breaks Both Bones.
William Harris, a negro boy, fell from a bench yesterday at his home, 91 Williams Street, and broke both bones in his right arm. He was treated by Dr. R. E. Watts, of the City Hospital.

Warrants for the rest of the gang are yet to be issued.
John Kaminsky, who was caught making away with a wagonload of corn from the field of T. Woodin, asked for a continuance, which was granted.

After disposing of the criminal docket several small civil cases were disposed of. As there was nothing of any kind for court adjourned to meet again next Friday.

PLANS APPROVED FOR MONUMENT

Final Revision of Memorial to Virginians at Gettysburg.

COMMISSION IN SESSION

Three Penitentiary Directors Are Officers in New Corporation.

Final approval of the plans for the monument to be erected in memory of the Virginia soldiers who fought at Gettysburg, was given yesterday at a meeting of the Gettysburg Monument Commission, held in the offices of the Governor. The model is practically complete, and was approved.

Following this action, Sculptor F. William Stevers immediately awarded the subcontract for the base, which will be of Mount Airy granite. The commissioners decreed that it should be of Southern stone.

To preserve the symmetry of the memorial, the commission decided that the base should be 27 feet wide, making it 32.7 by 28 feet. The height will be correspondingly reduced, so that the top of General Lee's hat will be forty-one feet from the ground less the 2.7 feet.

Model Is Viewed.
Following adjournment the members of the commission went to the studio of Mr. Stevers near South Richmond, and examined the completed model, giving their approval. For many months the sculptor has labored in his building in the woods. Now he will begin actual work on the statue, and will complete it by next July.

Arrangements for unveiling the monument will be made by the next Legislature. It has been suggested that all Virginia survivors of the battle shall be taken to the scene at the expense of the State.

All the members were present: Governor Mann, Colonel Thomas Smith, of Warrenton; Colonel W. Gordon McCabe, of Richmond; Major H. A. Edmondson, of Halifax, and Captain Stephen P. Read, of Mecklenburg.

PRISON MEN TO DRILL

Directors Organize Manufacturing Concern for Richmond.

The list of officers for a corporation chartered yesterday by the State Corporation Commission looks like a roster of the board of directors of the State Penitentiary. The president is L. L. Scherer, the vice-president James D. Patton, and the secretary and treasurer is Samuel Cohen.

It is stated that the object of the corporation is to manufacture machinery for drilling—not holes in the locks of cells—but bolts.

Cotton Governors to Meet.
Governor Mann is in receipt of an invitation to attend a meeting of Governors of cotton-raising States, to be held in New Orleans on October 25. He hopes to go, but has not decided to do so. The purpose of the meeting is not stated, further than it is to consider the interests of the sections which raise cotton.

Only a small section of Virginia is given up to the production of this staple, and but about 18,000 bales are raised, having a value of more than $1,000,000.

Colonels on Duty Again.
The colonels of cavalry on the staff of Governor Mann have been asked to join him in his trip to Old Point Comfort on next Tuesday, where he goes to welcome the Northern delegates to the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association.

The damage was small, Captain Gill, while using the chemical extinguisher, had his hands slightly injured by a small subsequent explosion.

BECK CONDEMNS OVERHEAD BRIDGE

Tells Fair People Another Structure Must Be Built Before Next Show.

NOT DANGEROUS, HOWEVER

Street Railway Company May Eventually Extend Line Into Grounds.

Henry P. Beck, Building Inspector of Richmond, started out to the Fair Grounds yesterday. He didn't get there, because he stopped on the way to condemn the frail and flimsy passenger bridge over the railway tracks. Props were put up so that the bridge may be safely used to-day, but never again, says Mr. Beck.

Before another fair some different arrangement for handling large crowds must be guaranteed, and in this view officials of the Virginia Railway and Power Company concur. At present the street car company operates a loop between the Richmond Iron Works plant and the railway tracks. Passengers alighting from cars climb the steps and cross overhead the tracks to the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac and the Seaboard Air Line Railroads, descending on the other side into the ticket inclosure and thence through the gates into the Fair Grounds proper.

To Run Cars Into Grounds.
General Manager C. B. Buchanan, of the Virginia Railway and Power Company, has been endeavoring for some time to secure the necessary rights to run the Fair Grounds car line along the Boulevard extended, over the Dry Bridge, a single track entering the grounds just beyond the bridge, and continuing up just inside the fence line. One inclosure will be provided for disembarking passengers and another for loading cars, the cars proceeding along the straight track, and leaving the Fair Grounds at a point back of the grandstand, making a loop outside and returning by way of a parallel track on the opposite side of the road.

Whether these plans are carried out before another fair or not, the Building Inspector has issued his ultimatum as to the use of the present passenger bridge. If the present street car loop is continued, a new bridge must be built. Twice previous to the opening of this fair Mr. Beck warned the fair officials that the bridge was not adequate, and carpenters were sent to make repairs. Only in the event of the struggling and swaying of great crowds, such as on Richmond Day, is any danger anticipated, so that there has been no question about allowing the use of the bridge to-day. But some new plan must be provided before another fair.

WRITS ALLOWED IN HIGHER COURT
One Case Comes Up From Appomattox and Another From Alexandria.

An appeal was allowed yesterday in the Supreme Court to Lena Clements in the suit of Adams Brothers & Paynes Company, of Lynchburg, against Lena Clements, of White and the General Construction Company (Inc.), from the Circuit Court of Appomattox county.

It seems that the petitioner awarded a contract to the construction company to build a house, over which there was some delay. A conference was held, at which it was decided that she should be allowed $50 to finish the building and also that there should be a deduction of $480, or $10 a day, for failure to complete it within a specified time. The Adams Brothers & Paynes Company filed a mechanics' lien against the property, which was demurred to by Lena Clements. The court overruled the demurrer, referred the matter to a commissioner, and finally rendered a decree making the petitioner liable to a certain extent.

A writ of error was allowed in the case of the Washington-Virginia Railway Company against Beulah Bouknight, who was given $7,500 damages for personal injuries received as a result of the derailment of a car of the company in Alexandria county. Various technical objections to the declaration are raised in the appeal.

In Bankruptcy.
C. H. Berry, manager of a grocery concern, yesterday afternoon filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the office of the clerk of the United States District Court. He has liabilities of $23,304, and no assets.

Replevin Permits.
A permit was issued yesterday in the office of the Building Inspector to Thomas P. Bryan to erect a small dwelling, 816 Park Avenue, to cost $200.

Qualifications in Chancery.
Opening the way to filing a claim against the railroad company as a result of the recent wreck at Laurel, on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac line, Wilbur C. Day, of Clifton Forge, qualified yesterday in the Chancery Court as administrator of the estate of Robert G. Byrd, a freeman, who was killed in that wreck. The estate is said to be less than $100, outside of whatever claim may be established against the railway company as a result of the wreck.

A. J. Chawning, Jr., qualified as executor of the will of Susan E. Boltz. The estate is valued at $1,300.

GRAVE EFFECTS IN BANKING LAWS

Statute Gives Officials Chance to Dispose of Assets and Hide Misdeeds.

MINERAL WORK A SUCCESS

Corporation Commission in Annual Report Gives Summary of Business.

Failure to provide a custodian for the assets of insolvent State banks is the greatest defect in the law governing official examinations of these institutions, in the opinion of the State Corporation Commission. The subject is treated at some length in the eighth annual report of the commission, issued yesterday.

The law under which the bank examining division was organized at the direction of the Corporation Commission has been in force only a little more than a year. It has been variously criticized for some of its provisions, and the most serious objection is thus raised by the commission.

Give Chance for Fraud.
"Under the existing statute," says the report, referring to the moment when the examiner discovers a state of insolvency, "all that the examiner can do is to report the facts to the commission. All that the commission can do is to notify the bank's officers and directors, and upon failure of such officers and directors to correct the irregularities within thirty days, then the commission may apply for a receiver. In the meantime the assets and books of the bank must remain in the custody of its own officials, who have full opportunity to impair or dispose of the assets, and possibly to destroy the evidence of their own misdoings."

The statute should certainly be so amended as to empower the examiner, under such circumstances, to take immediate possession of the assets of the bank for the purpose of preserving the existing status until the irregularities are corrected, the impaired capital is restored, or a receiver is appointed."

Voluntary Report.
The annual report of the State Corporation Commission is contained in a volume of 1,512 pages, not including the appendix comprising the Virginia rate classification, which was issued separately some time ago.

The contents include the letter of the appendix, comprising the Virginia rate of practice and procedure before the commission, a record of matters disposed of by the body as a court, lists of charters and amendments, mergers, revivals and forfeitures, a roster of State banks, and taxation transmitted to the Governor, the rules statistics of all public service corporations, including their earnings and the extent of their operations during the last year.

Charters were issued to 899 firms, against 971 for the previous year. In addition, there were 175 amendments, five revivals of old charters, two mergers and 295 voluntary dissolutions. Licenses to do business in Virginia were issued to eighty-four foreign corporations, and twenty-one amendments to the charters of such concerns were filed as required by law.

Mr. Stone's Work.
"Commissioner Rhea," pursues the report, "has continued during the past year to give special attention to the assessment and inventory of lands, under authority of a new law, the commission appointed James A. Stone, of Bristol, as the assistant assessor of mineral lands. He has been most diligent and energetic in the performance of the duties imposed upon him. It is confidently believed that a better selection could have been made."

Summarizing the results of Mr. Stone's work, it is stated that the actual increase in the mineral land assessments during the first year of his work was considerably more than $9,000,000.

Referring to the resignation of Colonel Joseph E. Willard from the commission, the report says: "Colonel Willard regarded public office as a public trust, and had served the State faithfully, wisely and unselfishly for many years as a member of the House of Delegates, as Lieutenant-Governor of the State, and as a member of this commission. The Commonwealth has thus lost from the public service a man of ability and force, of generous nature and high ideals, whose laudable and patriotic ambition—that the infirmity of noble minds—was to give the State more than he received during some of the best years of his life which he devoted to her services."

Qualifications in Chancery.
Opening the way to filing a claim against the railroad company as a result of the recent wreck at Laurel, on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac line, Wilbur C.
